ABOUT THE 9TH NEW YORK CAVALRY AND CIVIL WAR REENACTING

The recreated 9th New York Cavalry includes people from all age groups and all walks of life. People become reenactors for many reasons, but all experience and enjoy reliving aspects of the Civil War era, as well as the company of many new friends. We are a family-oriented unit and encourage any and all new members. The idea of Civil War reenacting is to preserve and perpetuate the memory of the common people who did so much to shape our nation during the War Between the States. While working to achieve this goal, reenactors learn more about the period through first-hand experience.

WHO BECOMES A REENACTOR?

Anybody can become a reenactor. The 9th New York includes men, women, children, and families. Active members of the unit can be any age. The unit welcomes soldiers, functional musicians (i.e. buglers), civilian gentlemen, ladies, children, and any other period impression a member can think of. Reenacting has a role for anyone. In general, reenactors are people with a special interest in the Civil War, although there is no requirement that you have any special knowledge about the war. As reenactors, the culmination of this interest in the war is an accurate representation of a Civil War soldier or civilian to the public, your fellow reenactors, and to yourself.
